

A person wearing a long, flowing white dress stands in a field of flowers. The person's face is obscured by the folds of the dress. The background is a soft, out-of-focus landscape with more flowers and a hint of a building in the distance. The overall mood is serene and artistic.

Kirki's Loom Bio

"Kirki's Loom" weaves Greek elegance

Based on the precious textile heritage and inspired by Kirki's legend, "Kirki's Loom" enlivens the primordial textile tool, the loom, following an original, creative path, that of the revival of ancient Greek textiles.

Hand-operated, almost-museum looms create their own rhythm, giving birth to unique creations of limited production, all woven and sewn in hand.

Using cotton and silk fibers, motifs and colors I combine ancient Greek culture, traditional art and minimal aesthetics on woven gowns, shawls and belts with special embroideries..

Margarita Chrissaki (b. 1992) followed her dream of designing jewelry by establishing her own brand, Maggoosh, at age 19 while studying Jewelry Design at the Gemological Institute of America in New York.

Maggoosh went on to be featured in Vogue, Harper's Bazaar, and the Financial Times, and is stocked at leading stores worldwide including Liberty London, Le Bon Marché Paris, Intermix New York, and Lane Crawford Shanghai.

Maggoosh takes its name from Margarita's breakdancing nickname, and dance is at the heart of the inspiration behind her jewelry creations. Through the expert fashioning of fine materials into fluid forms, every Maggoosh design embraces and compliments the natural movement of the body.

Each piece is uniquely handcrafted by a network of craftsmen in Margarita's hometown Athens, Greece. The results are elegant adornments that convey sensuality, sophistication and the timeless ambience of vibrant joie de vivre.
